WE’RE ALL IN
The Baptist Health Core Competency Framework underpins our organization’s future success. The competencies represented in this guide have been identified as the core requirements for driving performance at both an individual and organizational level. This guide details “skilled” behaviors for each of the core competencies within the five “pillars” and then further describes what “skilled” behavior looks like on a 1 to 5 rating scale.

The purpose of this guide is to:

- Provide a set of competencies to be used consistently.
- Drive performance by establishing a set of individual and collective expectations.
- Support engagement and growth opportunities.
- Assist employees in taking control of their career development.

About Competencies

What is a competency?

Throughout this guide, the term “competency” will be used frequently. A “competency” is an “observable and measurable characteristic of a person that includes using knowledge and demonstrating skills, behaviors, and abilities that contribute to performing well.”

Baptist Health uses a competency framework because it provides a common and consistent language. That means that no matter where you work or what you do, we can be sure that when we refer to a “competency” we mean the same thing. This makes it easy to describe what is needed to perform well within the organization. It means individuals know what they need to do to be successful in their current or future roles.

Lastly, it means that your leader can accurately describe what is expected of you and can help you develop in those areas.

The Baptist Health Core Competency Framework is integrated into many human resources processes, including but not limited to:
- Recruitment
- Performance Management
- Career Planning and Development
SECTION TWO
How to Use This Guide
EMPLOYEE CORE COMPETENCY EVALUATION GUIDE

What is the purpose of this guide?

This guide will provide you with:
• Evaluation guidelines and simple steps that you can take to effectively evaluate competencies.
• A consistent methodology on how you will be evaluated on the core competencies.
• Individual development plan suggestions for career growth using the 70/20/10 framework.

For Your Information

• The employee core competencies define key behaviors required of all employees to be successful. As such, competencies are the standards by which we achieve our goals and fulfill our mission.
• Consistently assessing how well individuals demonstrate these behaviors against a common standard is key in providing valuable feedback during the employee evaluation process.
• After assessing the core competencies, take time to discuss the ratings using the behaviors presented. Consider balanced and timely feedback during performance conversations. Avoid generalizations and non-factual input.
• During the conversations also discuss potential areas for development and growth using the 70/20/10 framework.
Recruitment

When seeking candidates for an employee role, hiring managers will use this guide to evaluate prospective candidates based on the key competencies and the expected observable behaviors. Hiring managers can, for example, develop interview questions to assess the candidate’s past performance in relation to each of the key competencies.

Performance Management and Development

Leaders can work with their employees to gain feedback on their performance against the key competencies. This information is also fed into the Performance Management System available in PeopleSoft. By describing “skilled” behavior, employees have a clear understanding of what behaviors are required to reach the next level.

Creating an Individual Development Plan for Career Growth

An Individual Development Plan (IDP) is a document that is designed to help employees achieve their full potential. An IDP is the employee’s roadmap to skill development, enhanced knowledge, and general success within Baptist Health.

UNSKILLED

☐ Is inconsistent with providing updated information to patients and their families.
☐ Waits for leaders, patients or their families to make a request prior to taking action.
☐ Is reactive rather than proactive.
☐ Does not communicate important information or when a problem arises, resulting in the duplication of work and customer dissatisfaction.
☐ Impatient and discourteous with patients, visitors, or coworkers; unable or unwilling to explain information for others to understand.
☐ Avoids taking accountability or engaging in service recovery when mistakes are made or a patient’s needs are not met.

SKILLED

☐ Establishes and maintains effective relationships with co-workers, patients and their families.
☐ Anticipates needs and takes steps to accommodate.
☐ Provides service in a respectful manner in line with Baptist Health values.
☐ Regularly communicates important information to coworkers, leader, and other relevant parties.
☐ Suggests ways to improve processes to better meet needs.
☐ Engages in service recovery when mistakes are made or expectations are not met.

ABOVE & BEYOND

☐ Responds quickly to all inquiries, even if it is only to say he/she is looking into the issue; follows up to ensure that needs are met.
☐ Demonstrates empathy towards coworkers, patients, and families.
☐ Proactively looks for ways to satisfy the customer.
☐ Leaves most interactions on a positive note, being able to turn something that could be perceived as unpleasant into a win for everyone.
CUSTOMER SERVICE

WORK EXPERIENCES

- Find an opportunity to provide service recovery.
- Identify one of your department’s products or services that customers are unhappy with and try to improve it.
- Set aside time to listen to your customers and understand their needs. Report your findings back to your leader and team.
- Ask your leader for your department’s patient or customer satisfaction data to understand how your department is meeting their expectations.

FEEDBACK AND RELATIONSHIPS

- Meet with someone from the patient experience or guest services teams. Or find a peer that is consistently good at making their patients or customers happy. Learn from them one new thing you can do for your patients or customers.
- Ask your leader or peer to observe you or review your work, then give you feedback on something you can do differently for your customer.
- If you have customers that you regularly work with, add additional contact time dedicated to building and maintaining your relationship with them.
- Meet with someone in another department that also supports your customer. Ask for their feedback on how you support the customer and look for new synergies that can improve your customer’s experience.

EDUCATION AND TRAINING

- Learn about how customer’s expectations are met and exceeded in other organizations or industries. Find a practice you can adapt for yourself or your department.
- What is your mindset about customer service? Learn how to change your mindset from experts.
- Learn about other people or organizations that failed to meet customer expectations. Find the “lessons learned” that you can adopt.

LEARNING ON THE FLY

WORK EXPERIENCES

- Recommend a new process or performance improvement to your supervisor and/or peers.
- Build the ability to integrate new learning, information and skills to enhance your performance.
- The next time you have to learn something new, ask more questions first. Spend the first half of your time defining and rethinking the problem. Offer solutions.
- Volunteer for a project that is outside your area of expertise.

FEEDBACK AND RELATIONSHIPS

- Work with a mentor to reflect on how you adapt in new situations.
- Look for someone who learns quickly and independently in the context of an activity, seek opportunities to extend and deepen your learning.
- Shadow or interview coworkers in your department to know and better understand their different roles and responsibilities.
- Learn from those in authority and analyze what they do.
- Spend time with a leader or peer that seems more comfortable taking on new things and learning as they go along.

EDUCATION AND TRAINING

- Learn ways to build your resiliency in the face of challenge.
- Learn how to develop knowledge and expertise in small chunks as you work, rather than by more formal learning that may be slower.
- Tap into resources under the Develop Skills section of MyCareer.

SELF-DEVELOPMENT

WORK EXPERIENCES
- Learn from mistakes. Focus on "Why" more than "What".
- Teach or coach someone in something in which you are not an expert. As you teach, you will continue to learn.
- Become a peer mentor or preceptor to new employees.
- Take on a task that is new or one you dislike. Push through until you are comfortable with it, then reflect back on what you learned from the experience.
- Take on an assignment outside your function or entity to get experience working in a different setting.

FEEDBACK AND RELATIONSHIPS
- Receive feedback: Allow others to offer you course-correction information without being defensive. Two easy questions to ask (and answer) include: “What is one thing you see that is a key strength for me?” “What is one thing I could start doing?” Thank them for their input.
- Reach out to others on your team that are good at self-development to learn how they continually develop themselves.
- Ask your leader to help connect you to a mentor that can give you insight into your development.
- Spend time with someone that is an expert in an area where you are a novice.

When it comes to being actively engaged at work
WE’RE ALL IN SECTION FOUR
How to Create an IDP for Development
To Create an Individual Development Plan (IDP) You Should Include the Following Steps:

- Set Your Career Goals
- Identify Your Strengths and Areas of Development
- Have an IDP Conversation with Your Leader
- Create your IDP in PeopleSoft
- Implement and Review Your IDP with your Leader, Coach or Mentor
- Ask for Actionable Feedback
- Follow the 70-20-10 Rule

THE 70-20-10 RULE

WORK EXPERIENCES
This amount of time should be spent expanding your current role. Take on stretch assignments or special projects. Shadow another area or department. Volunteering is also a great way to learn and grow.

FEEDBACK AND RELATIONSHIPS
Ensure that meaningful career discussions take place during your midyear or year-end review. This amount of time should be spent networking with others and building relationships. Find a mentor for guidance. Join a professional association.

EDUCATION AND TRAINING
Enroll in a live class or sign up for one online. Get up to speed by reading books and journals on a particular topic of interest. Attend a conference or obtain a professional certification.

Learning is a career-long process. After you achieve one big goal in your IDP, set your sights on the next one. That’s how you make learning a part of your normal routine. The more you do that, the less likely you are to stop.
