To All Baptist Health Employees:

Throughout the COVID-19 pandemic and the related challenges that we have faced, our steady focus on our patients and on each other has been a true force for good in our community . Through very tough times, we have been here—offering care with the compassion that is at the heart of our organization— looking after our patients and co-workers as if they were our own families. That is who we are.

While our nation once again grapples with the uncertainty of a contested election after a very contentious campaign season, and things seem uncertain around us, we must remain focused on our mission. Never before has that mission been more clear or necessary. No matter the outcome of this election, I urge all of us to remain squarely focused on why we are all here – for our patients. They need and know they can depend upon us again and again.

In these times of uncertainty, please also continue to take care of yourself and each other. Seeing this organization come together in times of need has been truly awe-inspiring. There have been so many stories of selflessness and hope. So many examples of compassion and dedication. Let's continue to live this mission every day and remember that the work we do isn't defined by politics, but rather by the honor and privilege of caring for people.

Thank you for all that you do.
